SUBJECT Bishop Baldwin

PETER JENNINGS: A recent ABC News investigation centered on a man named Ronald Rewald and his investment firm in Hawaii named Bishop Baldwin.

When Bishop Baldwin collapsed in 1983 investors found they'd lost more than 20 million, and the government charged Rewald with a hundred counts of fraud perjury and tax evasion.

Our investigation uncovered additional evidence that Bishop Baldwin was being used by the Central Intelligence Agency to run illegal secret operations, a report the Agency denies.

In Hawaii today, a federal judge ordered the CIA to turn over all relevant documents to the defense and to answer over seventeen hundred questions relating to CIA involvement with Rewald and the investment company.
